The Vanderburgh County Surveyor invites you to participate in an important program to promote awareness, appreciation, and stewardship of Indiana's valuable soil and water resources.

Project Wet provides a unique opportunity for educators, resource managers, concerned citizens, and civic leaders to partner-up and make a real difference in the community's perception, use, and management of Indiana's lakes, rivers, streams, wetlands, and other natural water resources.

New federal and state rules require local government agencies to reach out, educate, and involve the public to attain specific stormwater quality goals. Project Wet workshops link teachers with water resource agencies, satisfy educational requirements for government workers, explore activities compatible with K-12 curricula, and establish partnerships between public and private entities to address water quality management issues.

Read the enclosed Project Wet brochure and register to attend the workshop. Become a Project Wet facilitator (Days 1 and 2) or simply learn more about water quality through hands-on experience (Day 1). The workshop will be held at the historic Vanderburgh County Old Courthouse in Wedgwood Hall.

Look for future workshops hosted by the Vanderburgh County Surveyor featuring volunteer stream monitoring, river-friendly construction techniques, and wildlife habitat development.

Sincerely,

Bill Jeffers
Vanderburgh County Surveyor
